

Laura Winter – Biography

Sports broadcaster - presenter commentator, event host and NCTJ qualified sports journalist, Laura Winter is, with the acceleration of a GC sprinter, growing a reputation as one of the most capable, credible and versatile sports presenters in the industry. The 2019/20 sporting year has seen some fabulous additions to her portfolio.

Broadcasting at some of the biggest sporting events in the world, Laura thrives when working across a variety of platforms, from cycling, swimming and rowing, to F1, Speedway, and rugby. Equally at home as anchor or roving reporter, Laura is engaging, incisive, and uniquely natural when presenting live television.

Currently working in her dream role within motor-sport, Laura was grid reporter for five rounds of the World Rallycross Championships on BT Sport. Laura's transition to Sky Sports F1 coverage was seemingly inevitable - 2020 will see her in the paddock and on the grid, reporting live on the world feed before presenting the Speedway World Championships later in the year.

Laura's extensive resume also includes a successful tenure as the dedicated British Cycling presenter in which she covered the National Championships and the Women's Tour of California across a variety networks including: ITV4, BBC Sport, Eurosport and NBC. Her attention to the finest, decisive details across a variety of sports - driven by her own passion for cycling - is second to none.

A warm and engaging host who is open to share her vast knowledge of the sports we love.
